

I do not support this petition. The ARRL petition would still require a morse code test for the Extra Class. It seems that this inclusion is more about satisfying the "good old boys" of amateur radio, than of extending the possibilities for advancement in license class to all who have the knowledge to achieve them. As a ham operator, KD7TTI, I would like to participate at some future time as an extra class operator, I have already passed the written portion of the General requirement, but because of medical problems am not able to "do" code. It makes more sense to make the playing field level for everyone and eliminate all code requirements for all class levels in amateur radio.
